2nd March 2017

We are a Values school - This half term's value is: Justice.
Please see our website for Home/ school values based activities!

Dear Parents,

Book Week: It has been a most enjoyable Book Week with today being World Book Day! As always, there were lots of fantastic, imaginative costumes to dazzle us all. Tomorrow is our Annual Poetry Competition and if your child is a finalist, you are invited to attend from 10.15 am-a slip will be sent out today to confirm. Check out our website and Facebook pages over the next few days for more information and photos.

Caught Reading: We would like to reintroduce this fantastically fun event! From today, let's see if you can "catch" your children enjoying their favourite books again. Please post directly to our Facebook page, let's have some fun and celebrate our love of reading.

World Book Day vouchers have been sent home with children today.

Our new school library opening: We are delighted to tell you that our new library was opened today as part of our World Book Day celebrations. Author Gill Jepson and our children cut the ribbon to officially bring it into play!

Gill Jepson-Author and friend of Broughton! We were delighted to welcome back Gill, who not only opened our library today (and promptly announced that she would like to live in it!) but also has been working with all the classes. She has been sharing her books and generally enjoying our Book Week with the children. She will also be one of our Poetry competition judges tomorrow!

Praise Assembly: Tomorrow's Praise Assembly will allow our Poetry Competition finalists to perform for our parents, so if you would like to join us you would be very welcome!

Parking at School: Parking is available for staff and school visitors along the side of the school playing field; although this is limited we must request that vehicles do not park in the separate car park at the Kepplewray Centre. The turning circle can be used to drop children off safely at the gate to the school playground, cars should not however be left unattended as this blocks the access for other users. Thank you.

Pentagon installation: Our new Class 1 playground installation programme began today (it was delayed from Monday). We have been told it should take 4 days but should not disrupt collection at hometime - please collect as usual.
